

Josh Hill is a highly adaptable designer and production tech with a broad spectrum of expertise in productions and performances.

For the past two years Josh has been based in London working in a range of roles associated with theatre and live performance. His chief specialisms are in design, both lighting and sound, but also show control and the running of performances. An experienced QLab Programmer, Josh is well versed in interfacing systems and during a 3-year tenure working as resident lighting designer at Marlborough College he successfully designed a range of shows that combined lighting with live projection, prerecorded video and dynamic spatial sound.

Josh has a keen interest in building production teams and developing collaboration among creative groups to bring projects to life. This interest led him to pursue an MA in Collaborative Theatre Production and Design at Guildhall School of Music and Drama, where he gained hands-on experience in Production Management within an innovative and diverse environment.

Josh also has a proven track record as a performance photographer, poster designer, production electrician and scenic carpenter. He has regularly worked as venue crew and duty technician in a number of venues around London, including Park Theatre and The Place.
